For twenty years, Common Impact’s skills-based volunteer programs have leveraged corporate talent to address societal needs from hunger and health to education and employment.

Recognizing that no one player can solve these complex challenges alone, we’re bringing our signature Skills for Cities model to New York City. This day-long event convenes experts from across the city’s leading companies to use their talents as a force for good by working alongside talented nonprofit professionals to build the capacity of their organizations to serve our community’s most critical needs.

Our Skills for Cities Boston events in 2018 and 2019 provided an estimated $217,500 in pro bono services and created lasting bonds between companies, nonprofits, sectors and - ultimately - individuals invested in the wellbeing of their neighbors and their city.

Participating companies will:

Be part of the movement to make NYC a leader in harnessing the power of skilled volunteers.

Gain first-hand experience with skills-based volunteering as a vehicle for the development and engagement of their firm’s top talent.

Invest in local nonprofits that are developing solutions to a broad range of social challenges.
